

OverDrive Database Configuration

The OverDrive Database Connectivity Administration page enables you to configure the following OverDrive database settings:

- Postgres database server location
- OverDrive Postgres database user password

Only Ross Video personnel or OverDrive administrators should configure OverDrive database settings.

OverDrive Database Configuration Settings

OverDrive Database Connectivity Administration page that contains the OverDrive database configuration settings is part the OverDrive Server web user interface.

To configure OverDrive database configuration settings:

1. Open the following URL in a web browser, where `<OverDrive_Server>` is the hostname or IP address of your OverDrive Server:
`http://<OverDrive_Server>/admin.html`
The OverDrive Database Connectivity page opens.
2. Click Database Connectivity.
The OverDrive Database Connectivity Administration page opens.
3. In the Database Host box, enter the hostname or IP address of Postgres database server in your OverDrive system.
4. In the Database Port box, enter the port number to connect to on the Postgres database server.
5. In the Database Access Password box, enter a new password for the Postgres user that OverDrive uses to interact with the Postgres database.
6. In the Database Access Password (again) box, enter the new password for verification.
7. In the Postgres Administration Password box, enter the password for the Postgres super user.
8. Click Validate to check your new database configuration settings.
Depending on your settings, OverDrive displays a Data is valid or an Error message.
9. To reset database configuration settings to previously saved values, click Reset.

10. Click Apply.

OverDrive saves the new database configuration settings. You must restart OverDrive services and clients to use the new settings.

11. To close the OverDrive Database Connectivity page, click Back.
